ABSTRACT

When a peripheral LSI has a memory space which is other than the memory space of a CPU, access is made without one of the memory spaces being aware of the other memory spaces.

5 A flexible bus controller BSC makes address translation according to information on the relation between addresses of both memory spaces. The invention assures wider latitude in CPU type selection and makes it easy to reuse an existing program or develop a new program.